Indiana Army National Guard extends contract with Prairie Quest

Fort Wayne, Indiana – The Indiana Army National Guard has renewed its contract with Prairie Quest for the Medical Readiness Pilot Program (MRPP). The mission of MRPP is to maintain a base of healthy, properly trained soldiers for immediate deployment in a call to action—on both a state and federal level. Prairie Quest’s part in this effort is providing knowledgeable medical case coordinators to gather and analyze data, provide guidance to soldiers concerning their case files, and resolve case issues. Initially, this was a pilot program, tested in the state of Indiana. Prairie Quest has been part of the program since inception, and due to the demonstrated success, MRPP may be extended to other states/military divisions.
